The Career Transition Coach

Mid-Level Manager Seeking Guidance Case Study

Situation:

Jeff H., a true leader and mentor in the Project Management space, was employed by the largest computer chip manufacture, an American multinational corporation and technology company, and enjoyed his career. He had been there for a number of years. He had even created what became the largest networking group on LinkedIn to help others in this field.

His proactive and helpful approach was recognized by others, and Jeff was in the enviable position of having a number of new opportunities to consider. The problem was that it was overwhelming that he was frozen from making a decision. Jeff needed someone with experience to help him choose the right career path. He chose Coach Kevin Tucker.

Coach Kevin Tucker

Coach Kevin Tucker first helped Jeff get clear on what his ultimate and more immediate career goals were. Once Jeff had those firmly set he was able to take a step back and objectively consider all the options open to him. Coach Kevin took him through several opportunity analyses that helped Jeff to narrow down his decision.

Result

Jeff successfully found a new position that was a very close match to his near term and longer career goals. Even when his employer came back to make a counter offer Jeff was able to confidently determine it was not a comparison to the offer being made from his new employer. The process helped Jeff get off to the perfect start in his new role.

“Working with Kevin was one of the best career choices I have made. Kevin is personable, inventive, and is able to bring out the best in people.” -Rachel K, Trainer, Phoenix, AZ

“Outstanding work! Kevin's personal information and insights were invaluable. The resume and additional material completely met my expectations.” -Terry L., Trust and Estate Financial Executive, Minneapolis, MN
